[Correspondence or the Richmond Dispatch.] Intermediate Celebration. HAMPDEN-SIDNEY COLLEGE, ?

February 22, 1879. Last night the old College chapel was filled with an intellectual and brilliant audience assembled from various quarters of Prince Edward and adjacent counties. The old chapel looked gay in her evergreen Committee of Arrangements, Mr. More, displayed so much æsthetic taste.

The President, Dr. Atkinson, presided with his usual grace and dignity. The exercise was opened with prayer by Rev. T. E. Peck, D. D., of Union Theological Seminary, Virginia.

As Semor of Philanthropic Society, Mr.

A. A. Campbell, of Hampden-Sidney, Va., was intreduced. He pointed out to us 'The Tendencies of the Age" in a practi cal and forcible manner, in State, Church, and Philosophy of the present day. After his stormy eloquence came the alm and plaintive voice of Mr. R. Martin, of Danville, Va., telliag us " Not (only) to Live, but to Live Well." He grew pathetically eloquent over the author of these words as he portrayed in a vivid picture the death of Socrates in his gloomy prison home. His speech then turned to the ethical, in which he showed the rightful régime of conscience in the affairs of men however small-even to a zero which attaches itself to a college boy's name with pertinacious tenacity if he "hollows unprepared." But if his conscience is well trained, he only has to say to the Professor "Sic"—then turns to the wall and says-Semper Tyran-

Mr. G. H. Wilson, of Richmond, Va., the youngest of the orators in appearance, a youth of only fifteen summers, made his graceful appearance on the stage, and showed how "Times Change, and Men With Them, but Principles Never"; how empires rise and full like one's hopes; how useful sciences and modern inventions bring rich blessings to men. But principles remain firm, like the great pyramid which, according to the tradition of the Arabs, was built before the flood, and withstood its devastating power. He says men make the age in which they live." His oratorical attainments give promise that the youthfut orator may figure conspicuously in the formation of his age.

Then came Mr. S. R. Dabney, son of Rev. R. L. Dabney, D. D., LL. D., who had chosen for his subject "Hungary." In so creditable a speech he reflected honor on his Society, and the logical and effectual way in which be managed his subject showed him familiar with history no less than its philosophy, as illustrated in that of Hungary and her influence on the subsequent history of other nations.

Mr. C. B. Waltace, of Virginia, in a graceful and eloquent manner demonstrated the importance of "A Single Aim"-that concentration of purpose and efforts is the secret of all success; the want of either the SUICIDE OF A YOUNG MAN IN GEORGEtown, D. C .- Washington, February 24.-The usual quiet of Georgetown was disturbed this evening by news of the suicide of Howard M. Stansbury at the residence of his father, Dr. Charles F. Stansbury, No. 58 First street, in that city. Young Stansbury, who was but twenty-six years of age, came home about dusk and went to his room. On his way he met a couple of his nieces, whom he kissed good-bye. He then undressed himself, and, standing in front of a looking-glass, fired the contents of a revolver into his head, producing death in fifteen minutes. Deceased was a clerk in the Pension Office. He recently falled in business. He was also, it is said, disappointed in gaining the affections of a young ady in Baltimore. The exact cause of his suicide, however, is not known. The Coroner examined the body and gave a certificate, which obviates necessity for an inquest .- Special dispatch to the Baltimore Sun.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.] Washington, February 25 .- The Senate oill to prevent the introduction of contagious diseases into the United States, and to establish a bureau of public health, which passed the Senate this morning, will pass the House without material change. The Senate, before reaching a final vote, had a call of senators, which compelled the Sergeantat-Arms to invade the domiciliary abodes of grave and distinguished senators. Old Zach. The Bulgarian Agitation.

LONDON, February 25 .- A dispatch from Tirnova to the Times says: "The Russians are perfectly aware of the intrigues of the agents of Austria to promote Austrian occupation of the country between Novi Bazar and the Aegean Sea, and they are doing their utmost to quiet the Bulgarian agitation for a union of Roumalia and Bulgaria, believing that further troubles at present would tend to alarmingly increase Austrian influence south of the Danube. The Bulgarians are aware of these secret rivalries. The Radical party are endeavoring to obtain their ends by threatening to throw themselves into the arms of Austria If the European Powers would consent to abrogate the clause of the treaty of Berlin for the establishment of a Turkish garrison in the Balkans the Moderates would be able to control the Bulgarian Assembly, and the Roumalians would be sufficiently satisfied to obviate any fear of disturbances.
